District of Columbia City Council Report

City Hall, 14th and E Streets, N.W. Room 507 638-2223 or Government Code 137-3806

To COUNCIL MEMBERS

From Rockwood H. Foster, Chairman, Environment & Business Development Committee

Date November 6, 1973

Subject Dwight David Eisenhower Memorial Bicentennial Civic Center

On October 21, 1972, the Congress passed into law a bill authorizing the construction of a civic center for the District of Columbia (P.L. 92-520). Specifically, the legislation included the following:

1. Authorization for the construction of the center;
2. Authorization for the Mayor to acquire, by purchase, gift, condemnation, or otherwise, all real property necessary to provide for the center;
3. Authorization for the Mayor to enter into purchase contracts including negotiated contracts for the financing, design, construction, operation and maintenance of the center;
4. Authorization for appropriation of $14,000,000 as the Federal share of carrying out the purposes of the Act, to remain available until expended; and
5. Authorization for the proposed Mt. Vernon Square site.

In the same legislation, the Congress authorized the Mayor, the City Council and the National Capital Planning Commission to review and approve the design and the construction cost estimates for the center before such plans were submitted to the Senate and House Committees on the District of Columbia and Appropriations for final review and approval and before construction contracts are awarded.

With regard to its responsibility under this Act, the Council held a public hearing on October 18, 1973, sponsored by the Environment and Business Development Committee. Plans and cost estimates were made available in advance of the hearing for the public to review and comment on.

While the Council's Congressional mandate is very restricted, that we are only responsible for the approval of the architectural design and construction costs, and while testimony from the business segments of our community was overwhelming in support of the center, we cannot ignore the large questions raised by some members of the community who oppose the Center development.

Among the most compelling concerns District citizens and taxpayers expressed at the public hearing about the proposed civic/convention center fall in the areas of potential economic benefits to the city from the center, the impact of such development on the Chinese community, the adequacy of existing relocation efforts by the city, and the impact on the immediate area of traffic generated by the center.

1. Effects on the Chinese Community. There is little doubt that the center will impact on the Chinese now living both on and around the civic center site. Resulting from the center development are the obvious disadvantages of relocation, the diminishing of the city's and the area's housing stock and the loss to the city of revenues and employment opportunities generated by businesses presently located on the center site. However, there is sufficient reason to believe that the disadvantageous impact of the center will be balanced by advantages, many of which will have a direct and positive impact on the surrounding community. The attention and the economic involvement of the hundreds of thousands of expected out-of-town conventioners will be drawn to the diversity and activity of Washington's Chinese area.

2. Relocation. It was testified by a number of citizens that they believed the District inventory of available housing for persons displaced by urban renewal projects is, at the present time, essentially zero and the waiting list for such relocation housing is very long. There is no question that the City's track record in relocation may not be satisfactory, however, there are certain circumstances relating to the Civic Center indicating that relocation problems on this site will be significantly different from those experienced in most renewal projects:

(i) We are told that the majority of displaced households are single-person families in need of efficiency apartments. Urban renewal displacees are usually larger families; therefore, the most of the relocatees on the center site will not compete with urban renewal relocatees for the negligible larger family housing inventory.

(ii) Although the Civic Center is not an urban renewal project but is a standard District public project, like a school, firehouse, etc., Center relocatees will be afforded the same relocation benefits and protections assured to urban renewal relocatees under the Uniform Relocation Assistance and Real Property Acquisition Policies Act of 1970, as authorized in the Civic Center Act and the District's Relocation Regulations of 1973.

(iii) We are also informed by the District's Central Relocation Office that within the next nine months approximately 1,250 units of renovated or new housing will be available to displacees of both urban renewal and District projects.

In order that the Council have assurances that relocation for this project proceeds equitably, the Committee recommends that the Council direct the appropriate agencies to take the following actions:

(a) The Central Relocation Office of the District shall more adequately inform, in writing, relocatees of their rights under the 1973 Relocation Regulation than RLA currently does in its "Relocation Assistance Information" booklet. We would recommend the booklet be either rewritten or that separate notices be affixed to the original text which clarify the full meaning of "comparable replacement dwelling" (as per Part II, Sec. 201, definition (5)). Displaced persons should know the full extent of what the city is required to provide by means of replacement dwellings and of their rights in evaluating the "comparability" of housing selected for them. The Council directs that such extra information as is provided displacees be sent to the Council by January 31, 1974.

(b) The Committee is very concerned that all agencies involved in this relocation exercise maximum coordination with other agencies and a maximum effort to relocate in the immediate area to the Center all those who wish to remain living in this part of town. We urge James Banks and the National Capital Housing Authority in cooperation with RLA to put forward a maximum effort to utilize local area public housing turnover, public housing leasing options and any other appropriate measures to achieve the satisfaction of any residents' desire to remain in the area. We recognize that the private housing stock in this part of town is very limited and that nearby public housing may not be able to favor relocatees from the Center over other applicants, but we want to know that as much is being done along these lines as possible.

(c) Regarding both (a) and (b) the Committee recommends that the Council direct the appropriate agencies to submit to us quarterly a report of relocation progress on this site. The report should also indicate any success the District may be having in relocating within the immediate area those displaced persons wishing to stay. In the report, we would want households referred by name and address with an indication of any preference each may have had for relocation within the immediate area. In addition, we would want to know the extent of public assistance each household will be receiving in their new living units. The Council has also been offered the assistance of the Metropolitan Washington Planning and Housing Association who will report to the Committee regularly on their evaluation of the adequacy of the relocation effort.

3. Impact of transportation and Traffic Generated by the Center. It was apparent in the hearing that much concern centered around parking, traffic, and truck utilization patterns. The Center is planned with no public parking facilities provided. Eighty-nine spaces are planned for convention administrative personnel only. Questions arose about the adequacy of bus parking bays and truck parking for the duration of an exhibit.

The Environment Committee is, of course, concerned about the impact from such a center on the quality of our downtown air. We wholeheartedly concur with the early decision to rely on public and chartered transportation modes to bring people to what is, after all, a Center for far out-of-town visitors. Far out-of-towners rarely bring private automobiles, and if they do, studies indicate they rarely use them for downtown, short-distance transportation. Therefore, it is our conclusion that the predominant use of this building for national conventions will not generate parking needs. For the few local shows anticipated, we conclude that sufficient existing garage parking is available to serve the estimated 1,500 hourly visitors to local shows. Within three blocks of the site, 4,500 structured spaces already exist, not including those spaces in lots.

Truck parking has been resolved at the present. Trucks will park in the RFK Stadium Armory lot for the duration of exhibits. Truck routing that will have the least impact on existing traffic-heavy areas is being developed. Sufficient truck bays exist on the exhibit floor level to eliminate "stacking" of trucks on public residential streets, as we were informed currently happens around a number of our larger hotels.

If accommodations for any transportation had been underdeveloped in the earlier plans, it may be that for buses. Only nine bus docks are now provided, while we heard testimony that several hundred buses might be required for a large convention. This question might be studied further, perhaps redesignating for buses some of the space for administrative cars, although the traffic consultant has recommended other alternatives.

4. Potential Economic Benefits to the City. The most complex issue to evaluate regarding the Civic Center but surely the issue of primary concern to us all is that of the potential economic benefits to the city anticipated by this development. Before any other, we must field the first question, "Why do we need the Center?" and "What will it benefit us?" We are contemplating the floating of 30-year bonds in the amount of $80.6 million which is estimated will pay 5-1/2% tax-exempt dividends to investors. At the end of 30 years, the District's total investment in capital and financing costs will be approximately $165 million to build a $72 million facility. If the Center fails to operate successfully, the yearly loss to the District budget could approach $6.5 million. So, some might ask, "Why risk so much just to attract more out-of-town visitors to Washington?"

The answer lies with the real reasons motivating any city, as so many have, to build such a center. The benefits the city expects to realize will be indirect, not direct - in the form of increased tax revenues, beginning with increased real estate development in the hotel business, increased hotel tax collections from the 340,000 new conventioner visitors projected as a result of the center, and increased sales tax collections as a result of new visitor spending. According to the recent economic analysis of the feasibility of the Center, made by E.R.A. in 1973, the City stands to gain from only the most obvious hotel, sales and income tax sources a total of $5.7 million per year, which is $200,000 more than necessary to cover annual capitalization costs of the bonds. If the Center generates any operating profits, and the E.R.A. study projects a profit of $750,000 from operations, this can only increase the yearly profits recognized by the City.

A number of economic studies on the Center have been done over the past two years. In 1971, Booz-Allen, Hamilton did the first which covered a convention center and sports arena. In 1972, the City's Office of Budget and Financial Management in concert with the President's Office of Management and Budget and the General Services Administration developed far more conservative figures from those of Booz-Allen. These 1972 figures were presented in the Senate Report of 1972 (No. 92-1145) on the Civic Center Act, in which it is shown that even should the Center experience an operating loss of $250,000 per year, conservative estimates of tax revenues could balance these losses, creating no net loss to the District.

It is the Committee's view, after careful analysis of the various financial estimates generated, that the risks involved for the District in undertaking a development of this size are reasonably minimized.

We recognize that in every investment some degree of risk is involved. We also recognize that the risk is one involving District taxpayers' money, and therefore we have approached this review cautiously. It is, however, above all the priority of all of us interested in the future of the City and its citizens, to take bold steps, if necessary, to develop the District's economic base to its maximum potential and to equalize the employment of such benefits among all citizens. We feel that the proposed Eisenhower Bicentennial Civic Center fulfills both these goals. It is impossible from a responsible accounting perspective to officially project tax benefits to the City from the Center, beyond those directly tied to hotel, sales and real estate taxes. However, any economist is familiar with the concept of multiplier effects from invested or spent money and we are familiar with the real estate snow-ball effect that can occur from the construction of even one new building in an underdeveloped area. It is with these economic "dynamics" in mind that we are more than reasonably assured that the economic benefits to the City of such a Center may far exceed the District's very conservative current estimates of the economic impact of the project. We would venture to add to the official estimates the indirect benefits so difficult to estimate in advance - the benefits of increased job opportunities for District citizens, the potential revitalization of this underdeveloped and deteriorated neighborhood and the secondary growth of the real estate tax base.

4. We would further encourage that every effort be made to ensure representative minority and small contractor participation in this project. As the District of Columbia moves toward Home Rule and increased commercial and economic development, we must ensure that this growth includes all aspects of our business community as well as our citizens generally. Minority and small contractor participation should by all means include but not be limited to employment. Every effort should be made to include substantial contractual participation as well.

In conclusion, Mr. Chairman, we are confident that the project before us stands justified on its own merits and therefore we recommend that the Council unanimously approve not only the design and cost estimates but the entire concept of the need for the Civic Center.

Notice of intent was published in the D. C. Register on September 25, 1973, in Supplement No. 1. Mr. Chairman, I move for the adoption of this report and the attached Resolution to approve the architectural design and cost estimates for the Dwight David Eisenhower Bicentennial Civic Center.
